Some recent projects...

Here is a small gallery of my recent projects. Some of them done as part of a great team and some were solo adventures. More will be uploaded as I go.
If you would like to follow my journey, see my links below :)

Hi, I'm Liam, a front-end developer, who likes building things with code. Currently living in sunny Devon, England, I recently began my journey into the world of web development.. I have worked many civil engineering/construction and mining projects before, so I enjoy building things and watching things grow. I am constantly learning, and growing as I as I try not get bombarded by information overload. When I am not working on coding projects, I like chess, sea swimming, and gym work. You will often find me dog walking or star gazing.
